Characters:

This production has ten main speaking parts, both kids and adults. There are also a few additional small speaking parts, as well.

Summary:

Jump on board the Christmas Express as the train makes its Christmas Eve journey to Bethlehem...Pennsylvania, that is. Everyone is in a festive mood, that is, except for grumpy businessman Theodore Higgingsworth, III. Along the way, the kids on the train tell him about how the story of Jesus' birth isn't a "fairy tale."

Comments:

This a program that is probably better suited to larger groups. The train theme of the program does offer a lot of opportunities for creative props and scenery. The idea of a Christmas train is one that is very popular in movies and other media right now, so this is a great way to bring this theme to your church program.

Bottom Line:

This program was created by Celeste and David Clydesdale, which is always a plus. This pair has been creating Christmas kids programs for many years and they deliver a fun and creative program once again with The Christmas Express.
